More Tore Off.

Witnesses said the left motor of the sleek ship tore from its moorings as the plane took off, the left sion, and a fire so intense the eight trapped inside the spacious cabin were burned beyond recognition before aid could arrive.

The ship took off against a north wind, rose slowly and banked into the darkness. Young Doggett, Oklahoma City station manager, and John Marcellus, radio operator, were the only men on duty at the airport.

Marcellus was about to leave when an electrifying message blared from the radio: "Turn on lights. Returning to field." The lights went on. The plane started to glide in and then suddenly plummeted to earth, exploding and bursting into flames.

It was the first time a passenger had been killed in a Braniff plane. The only other major crash on the line was December 23, 1936, when six company employes were killed in a test flight at Dallas.

IN GEORGIA PRAISED Savannah Mills Responsible

For Profit Instead of Loss, President Says. NEW YORK, March 26 .- (A)-

Alexander Calder, president of Union Bag & Paper Corporation, today praised the company's Savannah plants as the determining factor between profits and loss in 1938.

In the pamphlet report to stockholders, he said:

"The year 1938 was an acid test of the soundness of the judgment that dictated building three units at Savannah. During 1938 many other new kraft (paper) mills came into production in the south, and in addition to the pressure of and in addition to the pressure of adjusting this new tonnage to industry demand, general business (according to reliable indexes) showed a decline of approximately 25 per cent in dollar volume.

"Almost immediately upon com-pletion of the third (Savannah) unit, your company was faced with the task of selling the output of three new machines in compe-tition with other new southern mills and in the face of adverse general business and price conditions. The fact that this was accomplished with almost no increase in selling and administration expense is a noteworthy accomplishment reflecting close co-ordination on manufacturing and sales effort."

As previously reported, Union Bag & Paper for 1938 showed net profit of $903,892 after taxes and charges, equal to 86 cents a common share, compared with $1.-384,595 or $1.32 a share in 1937. "The low cost manufacturing facilities of the Savannah mill were a saving factor," said Calder. "Without them certainly the year would have shown a substantial loss instead of a profit."

Another highlight was the visit to the home of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Murphey, in which George Washington in 1791 danced the stately minuet with the beautiful young widow of Judge Osborne, and presented her with his bouton-niere. Here the guests exclaimed over the bird exhibit of Dr. Murphey, noted naturalist and author of "Wings at Dusk." The garden has been kept throughout the years as it was when George Washington entered the same iron gates and crossed over the granite step which has worn almost through.

Visitors were entertained at the garden center, in the old Medical College building, the grounds of which have been completely trans-formed by the Sand Hills Garden Club. The modern floral environ-ment is combined with an age-old atmosphere that bespeaks a day when the land was young.

STALKING THE OLD BOGEY

The monopoly investigators, who started off last July with $500,000 cash and a lot of enthusiasm, have about run out of both. It will be necessary, therefore, to acquire more money if enthusiasm for stalking the old bogey of monopolistic practices is to be revived.

So far it is merely a matter of opinion as to whether the results justify the expenditure of half a million dollars. In any event, the committee is asking for additional funds to continue the chase. Bills have been introduced in both senate and house. The ante would be raised from the half million already consumed

Spokesmen for the committee frankly point out, however, that, if the limit asked for is appropriated, not more than $600,000 will actually be used. This has a tendency to confuse the minds of thoughtful people. They are wondering why the limit is so great when the necessity

The investigation, which has been conducted more or less under the direction of the Federal Trade Commission, has embraced a wide range of subjects. Up to this time, however, if reports are to be relied upon, the most dangerous "intrigue" uncovered is that some manufacturers of a few widely used commodities have been submitting exactly the same figures when bidding on contracts to be awarded by the United States government.

The damage here, if any, would seem to be softened by mitigating circumstances. The hang-over from practices introduced by the NRA and urged to be continued by its advocates, is still having its effect. The present tendency to uniformity by the government as to prices, wages, working hours, controlled production, currency regulations, et al, all lead to the same economic destination-fixed, uniform prices.

Private monopoly, if there is actually such a thing in so vast an economic domain as the United States, is a condition inimical to the welfare of the people as a whole. The government, however, has assumed the paradoxical attitude of encouraging and condemning at one and the same time. For this reason its arguments against the practice seem none too con-

The truth of the matter is, monopoly, the word itself, has been bandled in the political arena for so many years it is beginning to lose most of its resiliency as a vote-getter. It is gradually being realized that bigness and monopoly, despite the opinion of many politicians and pseudo-economists, are not necessarily synonymous.

In a big country the economic structure must be big. There must be big transportation, big utilities, big cities, big amusement, big business, big education, big insurance and last, but scarcely least, big politics.

. THE VESTED INTERESTS

The term "vested interests" has always been utilized by the politician to prejudice voters against a certain class, with no attempt at defining its precise meaning. People gradually and logically came to apply it specifically, although with no particular reason, to "bloated millionaires" and big corporations with huge

The exigencies of the time, however, seem to call for a redefining, a reappraisal, as well as a more fitting application of the term.

There are still many corporations with large incomes, to be sure, and millionaires, too. But the levies in the higher income tax brackets, not to mention other taxes, have tended to discourage individual thoughts of vested interests which, according to the dictionary, means "a complete and consummated right." The right to acquire is still there. The right to retain has been largely taken away.

The term applies more fittingly elsewhere. Aside from the vested interests of the great mass of "common people" the greatest "vested interest" in the United States is government. Out of a total income of all the people of $60,-000,000,000-higher in some years and lower in others-approximately one-third, $20.000,000,-000 will be collected from the people and spent to operate their government, federal, state and municipal, during the year 1939. Thus it would seem, in the attempt to destroy their old friend, the "vested interests" bogey, the mere denunciation of which put so many of them in office, the politicians have succeeded in creating one of their own, so huge, so enormous, they, themselves, cannot control or cope with it. It's so overpowering in its immensity, so all-consuming, it requires one-third of everything all the people of the nation can produce to keep it alive.

THOSE TRAFFIC LIGHTS

When the 25-mile-an-hour sneed limit was installed as a fixture in the traffic picture, some vague promises were made by city officials dealing with the question of traffic lights. In return for general acceptance of the lower speed limit, they were to be staggered so the traffic flow would be generally speeded. At least that was the general impression.

The 25-mile limit has worked so well that even agitation for several high-speed streets has died down, but the lights continue to resemble a Chinese hodge-podge of magic lanterns. They blink and click merrily on and off without rhyme or reason, piling confusion upon confusion.

Aside from the nuisance element of stopping for every light willy-nilly, the present system is tending toward disregard of the speed law in the interest of "making" a light and leads to the taking of chances on the part of many motorists

In some cities it is possible to set an automotive steed at a leisurely gait and ride miles upon miles without being stopped for a red light. The lights have been geared to the flow of traffic and speed is automatically penalized by the shift of the lights.

If Atlanta is to gain the full benefits of the lower speed limit, which has thus far worked so admirably, it is necessary that city officials do their share in the matter of co-operation. Whatever is required in the way of surveys or equipment should be more than repaid by the savings in gasoline, tires, oil and, last but not least, tempers.

PRISONERS OF HATRED

A condition which free Americans fail to understand is the unnecessary brutality exhibited toward some so-called political prisoners, such as Kurt Schuschnigg, former chancellor of Austria, within the totalitarian coun-

In a land where one may express his political and economic views without giving thought to the consequences, it is incomprehensible why men should be driven to insanity or suffer slow death by the torture of uncertainty merely because of their former political views and activities.

Consider the case of Schuschnigg. His only crime was being an Austrian and attempting, by the peaceful means of a plebiscite, to preserve the integrity of his homeland against the hand of the present European menace. For over a year he has been under "protective" custody, expecting to be shot, at the sound of every footstep in the corridor. The alternative of exile, a natural solution of his problem, whereupon he could rejoin his family, has been cruelly denied.

Although rumors of his release have been circulating from time to time, prompt denial has come from the authorities. They always appear chagrined at the mentioning of it, as if torn between the patriotic mortification of letting him live at all and the human shame of their brutality toward him.

This is merely another instance of German political cupidity. Austria is safely within the "fatherland"-probably forever. Exile, if Schuschnigg must of necessity be punished, would seem to be a natural corollary. But it is probably asking too much to expect mercy toward prisoners of hatred in a land where racial and religious persecution is so rife.

THE PASSING AUTOMOBILE SHOW

During the 40 years automobiles have been manufactured in the United States some 1,000 companies were engaged in the actual building of cars Any man who can think back to the beginning of the century can remember at least three or four makes, more or less prominent then, which have disappeared, he knows not where or how, with the passing of time. Who is likely to forget the Apperson "Jack Rabbit" bounding over the countryside? Or the White "Steamer," propelled as a locomotive would be propelled, by steam, breathing hard even at the approach of a grade which today would mean nothing in the life of the modern automobile? Then there was the "Acme"-a perfect name for anything that was good-not to mention the "Lozier," the "Winton" and many another excellent job of a time when automobiles were far better than the roads over which they were expected to travel. There were hundreds of names, however, whose renown scarcely extended beyond the city limits of the town in which they were designed and manufactured. Many of them resembled the pet name given the frat house bus by college freshmen. The "Auto-Go," but wouldn't; and the "Bugmobile," the "Darling," the "Imp," the "Kidder," the "Redbug," the "Gasbuggy" and-here's a good one-the "Zip!" all bring back fond remembrances, or other recollections better forgotten, to some people. Growing out of the old-fashioned breakdown on the "road," far removed from the essential mechanical aid, probably came the "Crouch" and the "Anger"-both expressive views of what happened then, as now, when ill luck overtook the motorist. But the more dignified "Mighty Michigan" and the "Stalic-Super" indicated stability, while for the long trip the "Farmobile" and the "Club Car" were available.

Many of today's names survived from the beginning and many joined in as the procession passed. It is and has been a great show, this automobile parade.

They laughed when Dora set out the other day to buy a "reasonable hat"-millinery being

CONTINUE THE FIGHT, ANYWAY

(From The Columbia State.)
In his talk with reporters at Charleston, President Roosevelt said no one change, such as freight rate adjustments, can rescue the south from its poverty. Of course that is true. This newspaper knows of none who thinks freight rates alone responsible for the relatively poor industrial status of the south. But unfavorable freight rates have affected the south unhappily—unless scores careful students are all wrong—and the fact that fair adjustments cannot enrich the south is no argument against energetic shoving for freight

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

RESHUFFLING THE CABINET WASHINGTON, March 25 years of hesitation, the President finally undertook the disagreeable but necessary task of reshuffling his cabinet. And now, if the most credible authorities are to be believed, he is considering carrying the task through to its logical conclusion. The logic of the situation is simple. The Justice Department owing to the first reshuffling, boasts two able, tested New Deal officials, Attorney General Frank Murphy and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson. One or two other departments cannot boast at us it is now reported that the attorney general's services may be made use of elsewhere, while the solicitor general is elevated to

The scheme is obviously sensible for several reasons, the most pressing being the condition of the departments which cannot boast. Other reasons are that, when Frank Murphy came into the cabinet, he signified his preference for some other department than justice, and that Bob Jackson, while perfectly satisfied with his present duties, is also admirably qualified to succeed his chief. Under the circumstances, it's quite natural that the scheme should be under

THE FAVORED TWO Natural or not, the story is of a sort not really worth repeating if it were not for the uncommon reliability of the source, which is not among the New Deal group most friendly to Jackson and Murphy, and most anxious for their advancement. The question be asked, why, if the President wants to put Bob Jackson in the attorney generalship and Frank Murphy somewhere else, did he not do it before? The answer is that, before the appointment of William O. Douglas to the supreme court, he was more inclined to listen to the sectional argument, excluding Jackson from the cabinet as a New Yorker. The Douglas appointment has led him to think the matter through, and to discard the sectional system of appointment in favor of the more reasonable one of getting the best man avail-

There is no need to emphasize the President's partiality for Jack-n. The solicitor general was his choice for the governorship of New York last year, before the uprising of the state's organization politicians made the plan impracticable. There is no doubt that his now-vanished fear of sectionalism prevented him from naming Jackson attorney general in the first instance. And, although technically a subordinate official, Jackson is on terms of closest intimacy at the White House.

If he were not to be succeeded by Jackson, who will give the same sort of non-political administration, it would be regrettable to see Murphy leave the Justice Department. He came into office under the cloud of the sit-down strikes, and with the additional disadvantage of a downright painful righteousness. He found exceedingly nasty holes and corners in his new domain, and he was early confronted with claims to judgeships as bad as they politically strong. He has already gone far to clean out the holes and corners, and has had an excellent record in judicial recommendations to the President. Had Murphy not been attorney general, Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach, of Washington, might even now be on his way to the supreme bench, for the President was strongly inclined in Schwellenbach's favor when Murphy returned from Florida to give support to Douglas.

OLD, OLD STRUGGLE The departments to which Murphy might most reasonably be transferred are war and navy, of course. Claude Swanson's long illness keeps him from his work as secretary of the navy. As for the incumbent secretary of war, Harry Woodring, his abilities are much debated. But, whatever Woodring's abilities, something should be done at once to end the disgraceful feud in the War Department between him and Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson. When national defense is of the utmost importance, it's manifestly wrong that one of the intimately concerned departments should be almost incapacitated by internal strife.

Altogether, the President is far from over the bother which his appointive power gives him. The chairmanship of the SEC, for one thing, has now been vacated, and the struggle over the succession to Bill Douglas is already on. As usual, it lies between those who desire an aggressive New Dealer and those who want a more moderate fellow. On one side, such names as that of SEC Commissioner Jerome Frank and Leon Henderson, the secretary of the Monopoly Committee, are being mentioned. On the other, the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Wayne Chatfield Taylor, is being talked of, along with the present undersecretary, John Hanes. There are two fundamental troubles in bridge playing. First, is the habit of playing for money. PHILADELPHIA, Lotteries March 25.—With no desire to blow the whistle but strictly as a matter of news, this column reports that there are three public lotteries in the hard coal town of Shenandoah, Schuylkill county, Pa., two of them operated by the local chapters of well-known war veterans organizations, the third ostensibly by a group of volunteer firemen, and that drawings have been held regularly for two years on Satur-day nights. The chances cost 10 cents each, three for a quarter and the capital prizes vary in proportion to the sales, being sometimes as high as $2,500. There are minor prizes also, the lowest be-The profits of the first two are said to be devoted to the succor of widows and orphans of local war veterans and of needy veterans themselves, and the promoters of the so-called firemen's lotter claim that they use their profits to buy fire-fighting equipment. All three are popular with the people of Shenandoah, where poverty is rife and the bootlegging of coal has acquired the dignity of a recognized industry, and all are run in violation of the laws of the state, but without apparent tion of any federal law. Some winners of substantial prizes are said to have invested the money in the coal bootlegging business The business of these drawings has spread to several other coun ties, and a rival lottery has been started in Mahaney City. But the Shenandoah promoters have in mind the unhappy fate that befell a prosperous lottery in Pottsville few years ago, and their natural desire to tap sources of fresh money in large cities is governed by a fear of ruin through counterfeiting and legal intervention. The Shenandoah lotteries enjoy a good local reputation as to the honesty of the drawings, but, of course, an audit of the books by agency as exacting as the United States internal revenue of income taxes, might reveal that not all the profits go to the beneficiaries who are publicly named Almost all the adult population and many of the children of Shenandoah are habitual customers of one or more of these gambles, and among the poor people of the coal country, at least, there is strong sentiment in favor of a monopo listic state lottery with cheap

The thought that a man might as well be broke as down to his last dime, but might win a fortune with that dime, is prominent in the arguments for a state lottery, and in the absence of that boon for the metention of the present lottries. Slot machines, the numbers racket and the punch board, the latter a device used to a large ex-tent to steal candy money from poor children, also thrive in the coal country, particularly in country, particularly Schuylkill county. The toleration of these gambles, and the lotteries as well, naturally presents open opportunities for graft by poli-ticians and public officers of vargambling platform would get only the votes of himself and his family.

And as I plowed on I kept turning that statement over in my mind, even as the crumbling earth turned from the plowshare. It was a great sermon Uncle Bill books or brooks-but a sermon from the soil. I dare say many another plowman got a similar esson last week as up and down the fields of Georgia they walked n communion with God.

The sparrows had already taken all the old houses I built last year.

And now every morning I have to go first thing and see if any of the turnips, beans, corn, and other seeds planted last week have come up—that together with watching all the other things grow from morning to morning, feeding the chickens, etc., accounts for my being late nearly every time to breakfast, but who will blame a man for being late even for a breakfast when he gets out in the open these early spring mornings?

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

IRISH CATTLE FAIRS Georgia's livestock program is producing exceptional interest in cattle.

This is evidenced by the growing number of cattle shows and livestock markets which are being established in various sections of

They are, many of them at least, interesting affairs in which the entire community takes part as spectators and sellers. I never see one but I think of Ireland.

An Irish cattle fair, if ft be held in a small town, is the most picturesque fair imaginable. Last spring in County Donegal and County Tyrone I saw enough of them to retain an unforgettable picture.

The roads down which the cattle are driven to the fair, always are fresh and cool in the early morning. The yellow gorse in the hedges and the white hawthorne splashes through it to make another picture that stays in the mind.

The young men and the old drive the cattle, whacking them the shout: "Ain't they pretty!" THE ART OF SELLING There is no auctioneer there to sell

There are the owners and there are the buyers. And always there are the interested lookers-on. Two men cannot make a deal. It is the same at the "Hiring Fairs." There must be two or three strangers to join in the debate. "Man, man, look at the lovely fat on him."

"Aye, and what a grand skull. Look at him now, at the lovely The sales bring on arguments. The buyer and seller scream at one another. They apparently are about to come to blows. They strike hands and shout. The third or fourth man present joins in. At last the deal is made and they go off for a pint of "bitter" or perhaps a gin and tonic water. THE HIRING FAIR The hiring fairs are held at the time of a big cattle fair. The farm workers, men and women, come and hire out for a period of six months or a year.

The strong young farm boys and girls stand about and those seeking help bargain with them. "Can ye milk well, now girl?"
"Go on with you, man. Can I milk!"

"Will ye, if the crop needs it, go work in the fields?" "Not at the six pounds ye are offering."

An interested group stands about, bending forward to listen as the workers and employers bargain. THE SHOCK ABSORBER The Irish Free State had until recently a very severe economic war with England. There were customs much more severe between the Free State and the Six Counties than between any two foreign countries one might visit. The Free State's chief export was cattle and pigs. England put such a high duty on cattle it was impossible to ship them out and make a profit. The Free State retaliated and trade between the two sections all but stopped. Large cities such as Londonderry were crippled most severely and even great Belfast feit the pinch.

England thought she could break down the economy of the Free State and she did do it great damage although the damage was done to both sides. But the Irish farmers stuck with de Valera, "Dev" could do no wrong. They stuck it out and the reason the economic war did not ruin them was that they could live.

It was England who gave in and the economic war, while it still exists, is modified in many respects. The Six Counties could get fresh vegetables out of season from the big importing firms of England and Belfast. But the people in the Free State could not. There was a terrific duty on them. I rode one day on a bicycle across the border to the town of Strabane and bought a head of lettuce and three of the big long cucumbers. The duty I paid was a shilling for the lettuce and almost as much for the cucumbers. I'd like to see it again, the green fields and the gorse yellow in the hedges and on the hills; the white cottages and the cheerful people. And I'd like to see another cattle fair in one of the villages. "Look at the lovely lard on him." Only an Irishman could

If you could talk with the ordinary run of people-the little people who earn their living and prize their independence—you would learn that their chief anxiety is the state of business and their chief desire is to see business restored to normal and the wheels of industry humming again. This recent much talk of war has made them uneasy, of course, they know that the last decisive weapons in modern warfare are national resources and money, and anything that weakens a nation financially lessens its ability to defend itself. "economic royalists" complain that injuries done to business harm the whole nation, you may suspect them of speaking one word for the country and nine for themselves, but we little people, who have nothing but our jobs and our homes, should be undone when you give the word. That capital gains tax, of which business complains, may be wise or unwise, but this much is certain. England's government needs every tax penny it can get, yet it refuses to levy this tax because it would cripple business and thus in the end lessen its ability to pay taxes.

Businessmen are in business to make a profit. And nobody but a simpleton will invest his money until he is reasonably sure of making a profit and being allowed to keep it. No doubt some corporations need to be disciplined; but for the sake of the country and all of us, great and small, we beseech you to give business and industry and commerce every possible encouragement and help, to the end that all may prosper and accu-

The Polish government was said to be carefully considering the note, which the News-Chronicle said was responsible for Warsaw's refusal to join a four-power "stop Hitler" declaration with Britain, France and Soviet Russia.

Danzig has a German population. It is a free city with an area of 754 square miles and a population of 407,000. It was taken from Germany after the World War and put under League of Nations pro-tection. Poland, however, dominates it and it is a part of the Polish customs set-up. It has a heavily pro-Nazi parliament.

Crackers Win Sixth Straight From Savannah Indians, 10-2

It did seem, upon departure from Savannah, that half of Atlanta was there to see the Crackers play the Indians.

The lobby of the Savannah hotel had the appearance of old home week. Among those spotted adorning the cushions and chatting among potted plants were Oby and Capus Brewer, Zeke Hopkins, Dr. Troy Bivings, Dr. Murdock Equen, Roy Mundorff, Bugs O'Connor, Jack Bowdry, Major Trammell Scott, Tom Smith, L. C. Warren, Nap Rucker, and others.

Atlanta fans have visited Cracker training camps before, but never in such numbers. There was just a sprinkling last year as compared with this year.

And it does appear to be a rather accurate barometer of interest being shown over Paul Richards' young ball club.

I found, upon returning home, that the Crackers have the fans by the ears, so to speak. There is tremendous interest, if the talk you hear on every hand is a criterion. And it usually is. Everybody wants to see the club in action and I can't blame them. It's really an interesting club to watch. All the talk of team speed is deserved. If there's a faster club, as a unit, than the current Crackers, seeing would not be believing.

Alf Anderson is one of the smartest base runners the Crackers ever have had. He pesters pitchers. He is gone like a streak on the hit and run play. He has scored from second on an infield out and from first on a single. He scored again from first Saturday on a single, but Shovel Hodge called him out. Shovel readily admitted afterward that he missed the play.

And you can't blame Shovel. He hadn't seen Anderson run before and must have been shocked to see him come banging home. Andy had slid well across the plate before the

The former Georgia Bulldog doesn't look like a polished performer on some ground balls, but he is on them like a cat when he misses one. He shows improvement every day and is expected to make the Crackers a great player.

They're still talking at Savannah of what happened when he went all the way from first and scored standing up on Mailho's single. Mailho, sliding, was thrown out at third.

Anderson seems to be a very smart hitter. He studies pitchers and changes position at the plate accordingly.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 26.— Atlanta retained her perfect exhibition record by defeating the Savannah Indians for the sixth time here Sunday, 10 to 2, before 1,500 fans.

Final game with the Indians will be played Monday afternoon, and then the Crackers break camp, play two games at both Waycross and Valdosta and arrive in Atlanta Saturday for an exhibition contest with the Boston Red Sox, Highlight of Sunday's victory was the pitching of Pete Stein and Jim Marsh, Rookie righthanders. Jim Marsh, Rookie righthanders. Stein worked four innings and yielded but one single, While Marsh finished his two-inning. performance without a blemish.

It was Stein's first game this spring and Manager Paul Richards was visibly impressed the fine work of the former Gads-den, Ala., star. Marsh, recovered from the extraction of a wisdom tooth, displayed a fine fast ball and had the Indians at his mercy.

ON WARPATH. Mike Petroskey, big righthander, did not fare quite as well. The Indians went on the warpath in the seventh, scoring two runs on two hits, and added another hit in the eighth. Bobby Durham, working the final game, was nick-ed for the Indians' fifth hit of the day.

While the Cracker pitchers scalped the Indians, the Atlanta hitters banged out 10 blows off Leblanc, Bennett and Atwater. Jack Bolling, Fritz Oetting and Dewey Williams paced the Atlan-ta attack with two hits each. Both of Oetting's blows were scorching liners to left field and they were good for doubles. Marshall Maullin hit a triple.

Five Savannah Errors greatly aided the Cracker cause. Atlanta, on the other hand, played flaw-less ball. Alf Anderson made a nice stop of a hard grounder and John Rucker, playing in his first game, raced deep into centerfield to catch Whitehouse's long drive n the ninth. Rucker walked and hit a hot bounder to first in his two trips to the plate.

TAKES PLACE.

Rucker probably will take his regular place in centerfield in the game at Waycross, Mailho shifting to left and Oetting and Burge alternating in right, Richards is anxious to get his lineup and bat-ting order set and, although he is not rushing the young center fielder, he hopes Rucker is ready to go.

Chickasaws Will Rely on 1938 Lineup + RADIO PROGRAM

FRANK BRAZILL VERY POPULAR

Memphis Shows Hustle at Deland Camp; Needs Better Pitching.

By DAVID BLOOM.

Commercial Appeal Baseball Writer. MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 26 .-(AP)-The Chicks were tailor-made when the call came for reporting to the De Land, Fla., camp and although they've come apart slightly at a left-hand seam, almost the same team that took to the wide open white paper spaces in the winter will adorn Russwood Park come April 14.

It is, to a large extent, the outfit with which Billy Southworth drove into fourth place in the late reaches of the season. It will have a new and popular hand-that of Frank Brazill-doing the guiding. The acquisition of Brazill, who spent six years with the tribe, was hailed with considerable delight in Memphis and his hustling tactics already have made themselves of energy under the Florida sun.

NEAT OUTFIELD. The outfield lineup seems to be the neatest, just at present. Cul-ley Rikard, who finished last season in left field and left an impression in every league park, will be back at the same stand, flanked on his left by Buddy Bates, dependable, fleet, hard-hitting veteran. The right field job that Oscar Eckhardt, who at first chose not to report, then changed his mind. Eckhardt, a consistent .300 share of punch. Paul Bruno, a hard hitting kid from Greenville,

S. C., is due to be the spare.
Andy Reese, the finest first baseman in the league last year, will take up where he left off, feeling none of the years that im in the veteran class. Mickey Mouse Bush, base-swiper, bunter and speed merchant, will play again with the youngste Bobby Cummings, who hit exceedingly well and fielded sensationally for Greenville in the Cotton States, at short. Cummings appeared briefly in the Southern in 1937 with the Barons and Chicks.

THIRD BASE.

Third base became a problem when Jack Peerson became a holdout, the lone one of the Tribe. Peerson was going great when the Chicks let him depart to St. Paul late last season. They grabbed him back as soon as the season ended and Peerson isn't so sure he wants back. His fielding is somewhat spotty but his hitting is generally fine. At present Frank Piet, a kid obtained from the Browns in the Grace deal, has the inside track on third base. He has life, has shown batting and fielderan Southern leaguer and if Peerover the third base job. Block and a couple of promising youngsters, will be sent out for

When Aubrey Epps decided to desert the Memphis police force for some more baseball, the catching corps became set. Epps caught 143 games for Jackson in the Southeastern league last year, and showed a return to the form that parried him to the majors. Sid Gautreaux, who reported vastly overweight, is likely to be the other half of the staff-possibly the major half. Ted Duay and Johnny Martin are being given

NEED MOUND AID. The Chicks expect to get pitching help somewhere—but they aren't quite sure where. Frank Veverka, the leading Tribal chunker of last year, is back for more left-handing, supported on that side by Herman Beese, up from Greenville, and Tom Lanning, who labored with Montgomery last year. Besse looks like he's

The right-handed brigade consists of Carl Doyle, recently re-turned from the Brooklyn camp with a sore arm; Ed Heusser and Paul Spencer, holdovers; John Gaddy, obtained from Brooklyn after a year in the Eeastern league; Allyn Stout, the old-time major leaguer trying a comeback after several seasons in the Three-Eye, and Freddie Hoffman, a youngster who likely will go to Greenville. Stout has been impressive in early drills, but whether his arm will stand the strain of hard competition is in the conjecture class. You can't blare pennant talk with loudspeakers about this team, but you can't ride it down either. A few well-applied stitches and it will stand a lot of ripping.

THE OLD FAN SPEAKS OUT.

"I don't think," the old fan said as he settled back comfortably, "that Paul Richards gets nearly enough credit for his smartness as a manager. Why, last year he won a pennant with a fourth-place club."

"He doesn't want the credit," an interested listener

That may be," the old fan continued, "but I believe in giving credit where credit is due. I recall an incident of last season that frankly left me speechless.

"It was in the last inning, I think, two men out and the Crackers needed a run to win. And here comes Johnny Hill from the bench, dragging one leg behind him, to pinch hit.
"I thought Richards had gone crazy. Why, Hill couldn't run a lick. As I recall it, Hill hit the first pitched ball over the signs in right and hobbled around the bases. It was just what the doctor ordered. 'And just think of all those times Richards pulled a pitcher just at the right time or left him in there when it appeared to everybody he was gone, and the Crackers still won as the pticher got stronger and stronger. "My, my," the old fan sighed, "the boy either is very lucky or very good. And I am bound to think it is the latter because the luck runs out, after a time, in any sport."

"Well," the interested listener cut in, "he was voted the outstanding minor league manager last season."

"And he deserved it, too," responded the old fan, "The only thing I didn't understand about the selection was why felt in camp. Rookies and vet-erans alike are generating plenty in the majors than Paul Richards?"

ON GIVING A TRAVELOGUE.

If one were giving a travelogue with modern transportation what it is, it probably would go somewhat as follows-"And now we leave dreamy Savannah, by the banks of the Savannah river, with its beautiful parks and historic atmosphere, and now we approach the Chattahoochee. Atlanta's skyscrapers can be seen off in the distance. Candler field is just below."

Pilot Tom Smith made a slight miscalculation on the flight. We left Savannah at 11 o'clock and arrived in Atlanta at a minute past 12. He said we'd be in Atlanta at 12. It really takes two hours of normal flying to come from Savannah here, but the difference in time makes it seem only an hour, in the Texas league and is expected to furnish more than his or less if one happens to doze.

PLAYING TO WIN.

As last year, the Crackers are going to be playing to win. I think it was John McGraw who started it. He hated to tie or lose. The old Giants were always playing to win.

Last year it made no difference to the Crackers if they went into the last inning trailing by several runs. They played all the harder. And hustle on a ball field usually pays dividends.

The old fan may not be exactly right about last year's team being a fourth-place outfit, but there are many who still contend that Birmingham, Memphis and Nashville were better clubs but that Atlanta's spirit and hustle made up for the dif-

It's hard to beat the McGraw or Ty Cobb spirit. Or, in track, the spirit of chesty Joie Ray. The latter stepped out on the track for every race with the set idea that he was going to win-and usually did. The old determination, thus, is more than half the battle.

The youthful cast of the Crackers may surprise a lot of fans when the club returns Saturday to play the Boston Red by Cullenbine and Fleming, of the The youthful cast of the Crackers may surprise a lot of Sox in the initial exhibition. Bern, N. C., team which sent Lester Burge, Lowell Hamons, Alf fourth pitch. Skeeter Newsome Anderson and Larry Smith to the Atlanta Crackers this spring, has one of the most unusual records in all baseball.

Twenty-one years in baseball as a player and manager and never but once connected with a losing club (out of first division) is a tally. record Doc Smith is proud of.

That one year, the longest of his career, longer than all the others disastrous seasons ever recorded combined, it seemed to him, was spent with the Little Rock Travelers in 1923 and involves three other former Cracker players. Little Rock finished 22 games in the cellar behind the seventh place

Kid Elberfeld, probably one of Southern league history, was managing the Little Rock club and had Doc Smith behind the plate Lefty Rube Robinson on the mound and Joe Guyon and Frankie Zoeller in the outfield Those were his only regulars when the club started on its downward trend.

THIRD PLACE. On June 24, 1923, The Travelers were in third place, battling for second and a possible chance at the leadership. The team moved into Mobile for a series and over-night Elberfeld sold some eight or ten of his players, leaving only Robinson, Guyon and Smith, of the regulars, to carry on. Zoeller was a rookie and sale of those players gave Frankie his first real chance as a regular.

In dire need of players, Elberfeld walked out in front of a Mobile hotel and recruited enough players to finish the se ries. The Travelers moved into Chattanooga and again Elber-feld had to recruit players from in front of the hotel to finish the series. That same practice was coninued during the remainder of the season and it was one loss after another until the Travelers were securely in eighth place with not a possible chance to climb out. They finished 22 games behind seventh place for one of the most in Southern league history.

TOUGH TIME.

Not only did the players have tough time trying to win games with only a handful of capable performers, but those who did play regularly didn't have enough Kid Elberfeld, probably one of the most historic characters in all Southern league history after caring for Elberfeld during off hours.

Those four regulars, Zoeller, Robinson, Guyon and Doc Smith, helped make Southern league history with their fine play, but they all agree that the 1923 season with the Little Rock Travelers is the longest they ever spent and one well to be remembered as a lingering nightmare.

It's topic for conversation every time any two of the players get together and a round-table discussion when all four meet.

At Sponging Son-In-Law

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: Am I wrong in thinking that an able-bodied son-in-law who has lived half his married life on his wife's family should be forced to go to work and support his wife and child? He lost his job when the panic came and was without work until a relative got him something to do. He wouldn't keep that because he said he couldn't live on what he was making. Already my husband and I have spent all our savings on him and his family and each month we are paying on farm debts, his personal debts and in addition feeding him and his family. He argues that with our home running anyhow, three more don't cost anything.
MOTHER-IN-LAW.

You're not wrong in thinking the son-in-law should go to work; but you're wrong in permitting him to sponge on you and, if you continue to permit it, he won't go to work until you're dead, if then, It's my private opinion that a man who loafs and lives on his wife's family is or, and in sense of responsibility to himself and others.

Now I know what complications are involved in a daughter's marriage to one of these amoebas. Her heart interest must be considered. The fact that he is her husband, the father of her child, cannot be ignored. Put him out and wife and child may go with him to suffer. Let him remain and not only are the peace and pleasure of the home destroyed but the financial re-sources of the family taxed and their future jeopardized. So the poor parents are baffled no end.

A pick and shovel with WPA insignia would be a badge of honor to him and others of his ilk who pretend to be waiting for classy white-collar jobs. With all due respect to the upstanding men who want work and can't get it, nobody has an iota of respect for a man who eats his head off, using his wife and child as meal tickets to a table for which he doesn't buy the salt.

But if he can't be persuaded to go to work he should be put to work; with the help of the court if that's the only way. And phooey on

So I say, let the judge help the gentleman to find out what it costs to feed one man, which will give him an appreciation of what his in-laws have spent and him and his tribe.

Parents Baffled My Day: San Diego Project Unique, Interesting

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Our trip from Los Angeles to San Diego yesterday was very lovely. The sun came out to shine on the sea, along which our road ran for some distance. We passed through fertile country. At this season everything looks very green, and the flowers in San Diego are beautiful beyond description.

I went out for an hour with the NYA director, and visited two most unique and inter-esting projects, both of which are located in the park, which was originally part of the old exposition grounds. The Spanish village has been restored there. A delightful artist is training young people to develop new paints from clays which have been found in the neighborhood, and to do exquisite reproductions of trees and shrubs and flowers found in Southern California. These are used in museums and national parks. At present they are working for the San Diego museum.

The other project is in connection with the zoo and is the only one of its kind in the country. They study the diet of animals which are adjusting themselves to a new climate, and any new diseases or parasites which appear. The young people are excellent work under the direction of the scientists We stopped also at a WPA practice house for girls, which seems to give excellent training. I was back at the hotel in time for a short visit with the Mayor and Mrs. Benbough, our hosts. The San Diego Teachers 'Association was more than kind, and three of the teachers even rose this morning to take us out to the 8 o'clock train, which seems to me the height of hospitality.

I was interested in the forum period after my lecture last night, when I was asked again the question: "Why is such a concerted effort being made to eliminate married women workers from in-dustry and the professions?" I feel, of course, that this effort is as yet not very vigorous in this country, but we should fight it for it is based on misunderstanding. The proportion of married women working is very small in comparison to the total unemployment problem. Unless you eliminate all women working, which would mean that a number of women who are now earning their own livings and supporting dependents would become burdens on the communities, you would make no appreciable dent in unemployment. This fear of unemployment is forcing us into an unconsidered and un-American attitude toward working women.

I wonder if you have received any stamps issued by the National Wildlife Federation of Washington, D. C.?" This happens to be the week which they call National Wildlife Restoration Week, during which they try to draw our attention to the importance of knowing more about the conservation of our wildlife resources. These stamps are sold for the support of the federation, and I can imagine few youngsters who would not receive great joy from them.

We are now back in Los Angeles for a few hours. In a few minutes I shall be off to visit a resident project, and I shall tell you about it tomorrow.

Water Storage May Prevent Weight Loss

By Ida Jean Kain.

So many reducing programs that start off in a blaze of enthusiasm flicker out after the first two or three weeks because it is psychologically impossible to keep on being enthusiastic when nothing happens.

The reducers who lose on schedule don't realize how lucky they are. The loss of three to five pounds in the first two weeks of a diet is all the encouragement anyone needs to go ahead with the entire program. But those of you who can only lose a pound or so, and some of you not even that, are always convinced that you are constitutionally fat.

You are not. Failure to lose weight on a low calorie diet is caused by just one thing: You are storing water which prevents the registration of your weight loss. It does not mean that you can't reduce. If you are on a low calorie diet, you are losing no matter what the scales tell you. But the only way you can prove it is the only way you can prove it is to figure out your calorie deficit over a certain length of time.

For example, we will suppose that your daily diet is 600 calories below your normal requirement.
Multiply the 600 by the number of days and then divide by 4,000, the number of calories it takes to make up a pound. Your body keeps on using the same number of calories as usua on a diet and if these calories are not supplied in food, the body's fat is converted into energy.

You can always account for ed for is water storage. Sometimes it occurs at the beginning of the diet, sometimes later on when the program has always gone smoothly. One young woman went on a diet of 1,500 calories and her weight remained right where it was on her normal intake of 2,300 calories. The 800-calorie deficit did bring about an abrupt change in weight during the first two days, but for the next eleven days the scales did not budge. Then suddenly she began to lose and the scales registered to the pound all the weight she should have lost in that period.

This water retention can't go on forever. The longest period ever reported was 16 days, and usually it is only for a week. The worst thing about it is that you do not always realize that you have really lost weight when you have been faithful to your diet and start overeating again before the reduc-tion can be registered.

Don't be discouraged, even though you may not have lost for two weeks. When this water is lost from the system, there will be a big change in your weight and you will feel well repaid for your patience and determination.
Keep on with your program. A delay in weight loss is perfectly normal and regardless of it you vent hypothyroidism or to speed can be very much slimmer this

South Carolina Club To Mark 2d Birthday Anniversary Today

By Sally Forth.

WHEN the South Carolina Club celebrates its second birthday today with a party at the Atlanta Woman's Club, the members will be served slices of pound cake made from a recipe used in South Carolina more than 100 years ago. The cake is the work of Mrs. William Leppard, formerly of Trenton, and she uses the same recipe used by an ante-bellum slave, known as "Aunt Sara," who belonged to Mrs. Leppard's grandmother, the late Mrs. Eliza Hatcher, of Trenton. The cake will be topped by two gleaming candles for the birthday party.

Today's party will be a happy occasion for 70 members of the club, which was formed March 27, 1937, at the Atlanta Woman's Club by Mrs. Robert G. Lebby and Mrs. Leppard, with a charter membership of 34 former South Carolinans. Mrs. Lebby is a native of Walhalla, S. C. The club's by-laws, made during the early days of the club, were made by Mrs. Leppard and Mrs. Robert Sweeny. One of the objectives of the club, other than gathering to sing the praises of their native heath, is the scholarship given at Coker College for Girls in Hartsville, S. C. Ruth Rogers, of At-lanta, is now attending the institution on the club's scholarship. Another educational feature offered through the club is the scholarship in public speaking given by James F. Watson. Officers of the club are Mrs. George Granberry, president; Mrs. R. C. Merritt, first vice president; Mrs. B. W. Medlock, second vice president; Mrs. S. W. Kelly, secretary; Mrs. R. R. Nichols, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Fred Sorrow Jr., treasurer; Mrs. O. Lee White, parliamentarian, and Mrs. T. J. Stovall,

Very appropriate is the club song, "Carolina," and the club colors of blue and gold, which are also the South Carolina state shades. The club owns, among its many mementos, a South Caro-lina flag given by Mrs. Orlando Sheppard.

A feature of the anniversary party will be the toast written by one of the club members, Mrs. George Adams. It follows:

South Carolina long ago was made from a happy dream, and we who have wandered off from that, dear state, love to meet together, and of her charm and greatness relate, so a club was formed two years ago today. Mrs. Lebby conceived the idea and Mrs. Leppard with enthusiasm which did not abate, started the ball rolling.

And, as the first ball of snow.

And, as the first ball of snow, soon gathered together a choice number, until now we are 60 or more. And so on our second birthday we joyfully gather around to relate, how happy we are and proud, too, of our great state.

great state.

Two presidents have served us through thick and thin, and to them we pause to honor. Mrs. Lebby, who ploughed the first row, and Mrs. (Olin) Cofer of her gift a donor, and now Mrs. Granberry has carefully and courageously taken the reins in her hands. And to these we say our president, the past and the present, please stand, so that we may show our appreciation and how proud we are of you.

Before this masterpiece is closed proud we are of you.

Before this masterpiece is closed I want to bring in those who have served on committees and the programs got. Toiling through days cold and hot, also to members who stood by through thick and thin, for without one and all, this club with virtues could never win. The agonies of the beginning, the mistakes, if any, in the past, and with confidence and faith of the future, with heads up and banners flying, we say, right merrily to you, South Carolina Club, happy birthday!

A TLANTA friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson will learn with interest that this popular couple and their two children are now residing in San Juan. Mrs. Wilson, you know, is the former Eugenia Candler, and for four years following her marriage she lived in Kobe, Japan.

The Wilsons returned to the states more than a year ago and spent several months with Eu-genia's father, Walter T. Candler, at his home, "Lullwater Farms," in Druid Hills. Later they went to Montreal, Canada, where they

When John was transferred to Porto Rico, Eugenia and the two children came to Atlanta for a brief stay with her sister, R. A. Edmondson Jr. Because their father was in Miami, the two sisters packed bags and ba-bies into their car and motored to the Florida city to be with Mr. Candler before Eugenia sailed to her new home. The Wilsons sailed from the Florida point for the tropical country, where they will make their home for an indefinite length of time.
